

Haughton
in Bloom in December

All the deciduous trees are bare, but the conifers, silver plants and bare branches have a crisp, clean look ...

... which our cemetery squirrel seems to be enjoying.

Work begins on surfacing the Grassy Lane.

Grassy no more, but the new surface invites people to walk its length.

There is much environmental damage, especially at the entrances.

Decisions will have to be made about its restoration.

Now it's Christmas and many gardens have colourful displays just as they do in the summer.

Lights.*

Both the Bell and the Shropshire have dazzling displays of lights - but look closely to see that the plants are just as important in the winter as they are in the other seasons.
